■ WALKING the Camino in Spain is very popular nowadays – boosted, no doubt, by The Way, the Martin Sheen film set around the ancient pilgrimage destination. For many, the best way to ‘do’ the route is to walk the final 100km into Santiago de Compostela. Camino Ways are offering a seven-night tour, with accommodation and dinner in small hotels and country houses each night. Starting point is Sarria and walking starts on the second day with average distances of 20km plus per day. Your final day is spent exploring Santiago de Compostela – journey’s end. The cost is 489 per person for the half-board accommodation and includes luggage transfers from hotel to hotel. Flights are extra. Camino Ways (caminoways.com; tel: 01 525 2886) has all the details.
